

SentriLock and FBS Integrate Systems

Delivering on the Next Generation of REALTOR® Tools and Services

Cincinnati, OH (PRWEB) August 30, 2010 -- SentriLock, the number-one rated provider of electronic lockbox systems to the residential real estate industry, and FBS, makers of flexmls, have completed integration of their systems to provide even more functionality and ease of use to their customers.

The integration of these two systems delivers powerful new tools to their customers. Now FBS customers can perform many daily lockbox administrative tasks right within the flexmls website. FBS customers can assign lockboxes to their listings, retrieve showing data, and even see which lockboxes are currently assigned to their listings. This streamlines daily duties by allowing agents to perform these functions from the application they are most familiar with, the FBS flexmls website.

Williamsburg Area Association of REALTORS® was one of the first customers to enjoy this new level of integration between SentriLock and FBS. Linda Kinsman, WAAR's Chief Executive Officer, states "I'm excited that we've been able to work with SentriLock and FBS to offer this new service to our membership. We are always striving to provide the agents with the right tools to conduct their business more efficiently and professionally. The fact that they can now see lockbox information directly from FBS MLS listing information saves them time by avoiding the extra step of accessing multiple databases. In addition they can now see what access times have been assigned to a particular lockbox and what agents have shown that listing."

SentriLock and FBS will continue to further integrate their systems to build even more value and functionality to their customers. Greg Kilwein, FBS Vice President of Development, states "FBS is proud to work together with SentriLock to bring this benefit to our mutual customers."

Both companies have established a long term relationship that will continue to develop and improve well into the future.
